I would use Kanban so that the principles and properties can be set in advance. I prefer incremental model so that the components could be built in to get a continuous feedback. As there are four components these may overlap.